I object to the plan for such a large development in our village. It would join up two or three small villages in to one large sprawl, destroying any individual character. I suggest you read England and the Octopus by Clough williams Ellis of portmeirion fame, he was a talented architect. The proposed land has allegedly been recently reclassified so as to permit development, this is somewhat shortsighted, if the plan is to reduce carbon footprint then food needs to be produced closer to where it will be consumed, ultimately there will be no way of producing or obtaining food in a carbon neutral way, but we'll have lots of houses to starve in.
