We welcome this policy for the important role it has in supporting the protection, management and delivery of these resources. Trees, hedgerows and woodland play a vital part as a component of multifunctional green infrastructure, linking and buffering habitats and species from the landscape scale right up to people's doorsteps and, as a result, providing people with opportunities for contact with nature, with positive benefits for both physical and mental well-being. The resource also has a critical role to play in safeguarding ecosystem services (promoting clean air and water and healthy soils for example) and addressing climate change impacts, for example through helping to regulate temperatures and carbon storage. We welcome reference to the Gloucestershire Local Nature Partnership Tree Strategy accordingly.
